

BABY ZEBU BORN AT THE ZOO IN CENTRAL PARK

Willie Sticks Cuddles the Little Stranger to Give It a Start.

IT IS A CUTE ANIMAL.

But It Was Almost Frozen Before Being Found and Warmed Up.

A baby zebu was born at the Central Park Zoo late on Saturday night and all day yesterday Willie Sticks, the animal nurse at the city's big menagerie, sat beside a big stove in the hospital holding the newborn in his arms. The animal nurse was thawing out the baby zebu and before the Sunday sun had set the little fellow, thoroughly warmed, was taken to his mother's side.

The animal hospital is situated in the hay house and a strange sight was presented to those sufficiently in the good graces of Head Keeper Billy Schneider to pass into the more or less sacred portals. Before a big, red hot coal stove Billy Sticks, the animal nurse, sat with the half frozen baby zebu in his arms. Almost at the feet lay "Pompey," the sick cub lion, and about the room a huge ram wandered heedless of the sick lion's rumbling roars.

THE LION AND THE LAMB LIE DOWN TOGETHER.

In the Bible it is predicted that the millennium will dawn when the lion and the lamb lie down together. It would appear that this blessed era of everlasting peace has settled down at the Central Park Zoo. The ram was not at all worried by his nearness to the lion, and the lion's only protest at the situation was an occasional growl delivered to show that he was a king of beasts even though found associating with a woolly ram.

Late on Saturday night the stork visited the zebu house and one of the night keepers making his rounds found the poor, white, shivering visitor nestling close to its mother. Willie Sticks, the animal nurse, was forthwith sent for, and wrapping a blanket about the strange little chap he carried him to the hospital to thaw him out.

That the thawing process was successful was evidenced by the ever increasing liveliness of the baby zebu. Before the Zoo was closed to visitors for the day he was striving on wobbly legs to walk. Pompey, the sick lion cub, forgot his own troubles to watch the attempts of the one day old zebu to navigate. Only when the little beaumont beat bumped against him was Pompey disturbed, and he raised his head in rumbling roars that caused the newcomer to tremble as with a chill. The pet ram sat by an interested witness of the zebu's attempts at walking, and at Pompey's roars he would lower his head as though about to butt the big cub. NAMED "WILLIE STICKS" AFTER THE ANIMAL NURSE.

After Keeper Schneider had looked upon the zebu's frantic attempts to walk he decided that he had passed the danger mark and forthwith named the baby "Willie Sticks," out of respect to the animal nurse.

Pompey is one of three cubs born to Helen, the proud lioness. For weeks he was the delight of all visitors to the Zoo and a terror to his brother, Trojan, and his sister, Joan. He would insist on hitting their tails, despite the corrective efforts of Helen. Each time she caught Pompey at his tricks she promptly cuffed him with a paw that would floor a steer. But Pompey kept at his tricks and worried his mother half to death. And then a few days ago the playful Pompey fell ill and Mother Helen had a more serious worry, for despite Pompey's pranks he was the pride of her lioness heart.

Pompey's trouble is a mystery. His appetite is unaffected and his voice has not diminished in power, but he cannot walk and there is no play in his eyes. He brightened up a bit to-day when he was being photographed, and then he lay down on the hospital floor and watched the baby zebu floundering about with ever and anon growls for the all too bold ram. Pompey is not at all in favor of the millennium.

GETS CELL FOR COURT ROW.

Auto Dealer Talks Too Much When Chaufour Is Fined.

Lauritz Johnson, a dealer in automobiles, living at No. 424 West One Hundred and Thirty-fourth street, was fined ten dollars for disorderly conduct in West Side Court to-day. He refused to pay the fine, so he went to jail.

Johnson's chauffeur was summoned Saturday for driving a smoking automobile and was fined three dollars.

His employer paid the fine and kept protesting that it was graft. He was admonished to keep still and finally Magistrate O'Connor caused his arrest on a charge of disorderly conduct.

CONSCIENCE DRIVES ABSCONDING CASHIER TO GIVE HIMSELF UP

Vernon Slingerland, Who 'Borrowed' $1,600, Says He Took Money to Save His Life.

Vernon C. Slingerland, who, while acting as cashier of the Mercantile Refrigerating Company at No. 381 Chambers street, stole $1,600 on Jan. 1, walked into the Greenwich police station to-day and gave himself up. He was accompanied by his father, who lives at No. 613 Madison street, Paterson, N. J.

Slingerland says he is suffering from tuberculosis of the throat. He was informed by doctors, according to his story, that his only hope for life lay in taking up his residence in the high, dry climate of the Southwest. Having no resources of his own, he took payroll money of the concern by which he was employed, and struck out for Arizona and Texas.

He wrote to the firm, outlining his plight and promising to make restitution as he regained his health. The change of climate, he says, benefited him physically, but his mental distress over his defalcation offset his improvement in health and he determined to return and give himself up.

He reached the home of his father in Paterson yesterday. He has some of the money left, but says he spent most of it in travelling expenses and for doctor's fees. Lieut. Loneragan locked Slingerland up and notified Harry C. Lewis, treasurer of the Mercantile Refrigerating Company, of the return of the absconding cashier.

FIVE HUNDRED THROWN OUT OF WORK BY FIRE THAT RUINS FACTORY

Plant of Columbia Print Company at Montville, N. J.,
Is Wiped Out.

BOONTON, N. J., Feb. 17.—The entire works of the Columbia Print Company, covering more than two acres of ground at Montville, near this place, were destroyed by fire this morning, entailing a loss of three-quarters of a million dollars.

A night watchman discovered the boiler room in flames at 2.45 o'clock and turned in an alarm. Before the volunteer companies from Boonton and the auxiliary fire company organized among the mill employees could reach the fire it had spread to the whole plant, and all attempts to check it in the high wind that was blowing were futile. The heat was so intense that brick walls seemed to crumble under the furnace breath. The works were the property of the John F. Capetich Sons Company and its loss is a heavy blow to the community, for about five hundred employees found a living there. A number of the firm said after the blaze was over that the company would rebuild as soon as possible.

FIRE OUSTS 30 FAMILIES.

Not in Their Homes, but Police
Captains Take No Chances.

Fire on the top floor of a five story building at No. 1211 Amsterdam avenue early to-day caused Capt. Lincoln Gray of the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street police station to send thirty families from three adjoining houses, Nos. 424, 426 and 428 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, to the station, where they were sheltered until the fire was out.

The building was occupied by the Beakes Dairy Company, and the fire started on the floor where grain and hay were stored. It spread so rapidly that a second alarm was sounded. Fifty horses on the second floor of the building were rescued with difficulty.

Within two years there have been four fires in the building.

For the Woman Who Makes Her Own Hats— Braids and Plateaux from Paris

When our Millinery Staff was holding its Spring Council in our Paris Bureau several weeks ago, the makers of the best millinery materials were invited to present their new ideas for Spring. A Dressy Suit

Of Silk Broche Crepe

Created by Bechoff-David

Reproduced by GIMBELS—$75

The suppleness and richness of the silk make it seem quite like a dress, and yet it is designed with the charm of a Suit. Of course, it is not severely tailored, as you will see in the sketch that it is a gracefully draped model. Its tiny sashes strike a unique note! Navy or black.

Typically Russian is another model in silk broche crepe at $75. The blouse coat of this suit has a side-pleated peplum and a long artistic sash. Fume, gray, navy or black.

Swagger Eponge Suits at $42.50

Quite the favorite woolen fabric of Spring! But Paris prefers it in Terra Cotta, Labrador blue, rose, navy, white or black—just the shades in which we have a smart modified Russian style.

It is curious, but the Empire-cutaway coat of another model gives the suggestion that it is draped, and yet it is plainly tailored.
